Scott and Stacey Fischer are proud of their big, blended family. Between them, they have six adult children, three of whom are married. Adding in the couple's three grandchildren, they are a party of fourteen when they're all together.

Scott and Stacy's kids range in age from 20 to 35, and they're active in a variety of pursuits. Their youngest two, Leah and Michael Weber, are twins and both second-year college students. Molly Weber is a special education teacher with Gilbert Public Schools. Their son Grayson Fischer is the head brewmaster at Old Bisbee Brewing Company in Bisbee, AZ. Nicole Clifton is a professional life coach for Restoration Counseling and the director of engagements at Options For Senior Living, and their oldest daughter, Miranda Morgan, is a full-time mom, raising two children with her husband, Daniel.

The Fischers moved to Chandler in 2019 after previously living in Queen Creek. "We love living in Chandler. The city impressed us with its commitment to family and community while clearly growing and innovating at the same time. We were drawn to the Ocotillo community because of the beautiful lakes and sense of community. We have both lived in Arizona for decades, and we love the diversity and creativity that is seen throughout the state. It's why we remain and continue to make this our home," says Scott.

Based in the East Valley but serving the entire Phoenix Metropolitan Area, Scott founded Options For Senior Living in 2003 to provide experienced guidance and consultation services for families who are looking to find the right senior living setting for their loved ones. In 2021, he co-founded Senior Resource Connectors, which is an outreach and education platform designed to provide assistance for the adult children of those who are experiencing the challenges of aging. Stacey is a co-owner of these businesses and serves as the full-time ambassador for Senior Resource Connectors.

“Our primary businesses engage with families who are at challenging crossroads in their lives. Senior living and the associated resources are abundant yet terribly complex. Our work allows us to walk families through complicated situations and bring peace and relief. We work with hundreds and hundreds of families a year who are overwhelmed and in crisis. We love that we own businesses that so many families need,” says Scott.

Traveling is a favorite pastime for Scott and Stacey. Earlier in 2022, the couple toured Belize, a place they plan on revisiting in the near future. They loved the friendly people and beautiful country; however, they hit a snag when they tested positive for COVID-19 and had to wait five days before returning to the U.S. “Although it was a challenge to be out of the country, we were sequestered in our hotel where our balcony overlooked the pool and the Caribbean Sea. As far as isolation goes, being kept to our room with those views and room service wasn’t a bad way to go,” concludes Scott.
